the ear protector

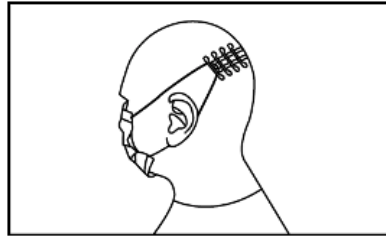

- Face masks are now mandatory for all NHS staff and visitors to NHS establishments and a face covering is compulsory for all people using public transport and visiting shops in the UK
- The Ear Protector relieves the pressure from the elastic on the ear and stops any sores developing when used for extended periods
- The Ear Protector can be mass produced in their millions if required
- For large orders companies can customise with their branding
- Amazing testimonials from leading doctors and nurses who are wearing the Ear Protectors on the front line fighting Covid-19

about the ear protector

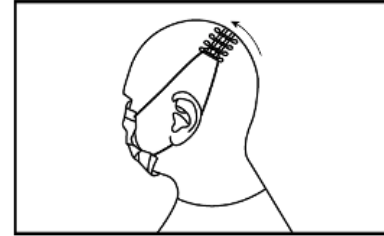

INSTRUCTIONS FOR USE

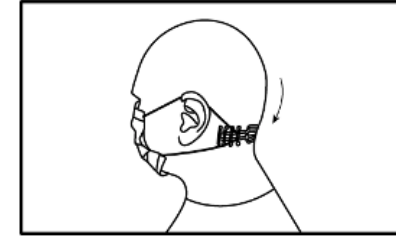

With clean or gloved hands start by looping one side of the mask to one side of the ear protector

Place the mask on your face and then connect the other loop to the other side of the ear protector

Ear protector in the high position

Can also be worn in a low position

The ear protector is designed to be disposable and is 100% recyclable. We produce the ear protectors from recycled Polypropylene and we endeavour to take back all ear protectors that have been disposed of and use our recycling facility to make them into new ear protectors.

The ear protector is made from polypropylene (PP). Polypropylene is a polymer plastic and is part of the 'polyolefin' (polymers produced from alkenes) family. It has many qualities such as being versatile and tough, but as a semi rigid material, it is also flexible at the same time. Most importantly, it is recyclable.

The ear protectors have been designed so they can be sterilised simply and easily at home in a dishwasher. In a medical environment we advise that the ear protector is changed after 5 days of being worn.

“If you wear a mask for an extended period, it rubs your ears raw. It’s not much fun. This puts the pressure onto the back of your head, so you don’t get sore ears.”

“The Ear Protectors work well and are very comfortable. If you have long hair that is not under a surgical cap, they are a little tricky but once you find the sweet spot, they are fabulous.”

Bronwyn Van Wyk – Front Line Nurse NHS

“As the owner of Guardian Angel Carers I have a duty to keep my staff safe. With Covid-19 all my staff are wearing face masks for long periods, the Ear Protector has dramatically changed the comfort of the facemask and allows my team to concentrate on their work.”

Christina Bassadone - Carer
